Top 10 Signs Your Loved One May Need Memory Care

When visiting your parents or loved ones, you may be observing some changes in their health and well-being. Here are some signs to be aware of that your loved one may need some additional support from a memory care community. It is always recommended to consult with your family physician on health-related concerns.

- 1. Continued health related issues—has there been a recent or frequent hospitalization due to a serious illness or injury?
- 2. Is their memory loss impacting and disrupting daily life?
- 3. Are they having difficulties completing familiar tasks?
- 4. Is your loved one not taking their correct dosage of medications, or confused about what they have taken and when?
- 5. Is your loved one is having difficulty with upkeep of their home?
- 6. Is your loved one is losing weight, not preparing food or eating properly?
- 7. Do they lack motivation to spend time with friends and family, or attend activities which they once enjoyed?
- 8. Is there a continued decline in reasoning skills or cognition? Do you feel they are a risk to themselves or others due to their cognitive decline?
- 9. If there is a primary caregiver or spouse, how is her/his health? Are they exhibiting signs of exhaustion, anger, stress or even illness?
- 10. Is your loved one appearing unclean, or unkempt—having difficulty with bathing and grooming?
